My name is Kheang Tang, I am a junior now here at UNCC before I start here at UNCC, I was in CPCC community college for 2 years getting my general education. My major is computer science concentrate in computer system for right now, it might be change to computer networking. I grow up in PHNOMPENH(capital city of Cambodia), and I come here to United State in 2008 when I was 18 years old.

My hobby is getting healthy. I like working out, doing weight lifting, and some running with my friends four day a week. It's really become a habit, I feel sick if I don't go to gym more than a week. If I have extra time like having all my assignment done, I like playing computer game. I wish I could have some spare time, but I really don't because I have a weekend part time job 10 hours a day from Friday to Sunday. I think coming to United State with little English is remarkable thing, I find it very difficult to adopt into this environment, but I think I getting used to it. What special about me, I think I am a quick learner, and I am lucky to have three language skills. I can speak mandarin Chinese, English, Khmer(Cambodia language).

This class is introduction course of security, so I think the only thing to make this class better is giving a clear explanation of definition and example to clarify the content. The most difficult thing in this class from previous class is to memorize the definition. To overcome this difficulty, I might use note card to write down the definition. My expectation for this course is to learn how to improve secure the data and computer from hacker, and maybe learn feature of implement the security.
